THE ART OF DAMON LA SCALA

ABOUT STUDIO LA SCALA - DESIGN

Denver based artist Damon La Scala has been providing original art to Interior Designers since 1997. Working with Todd Sheehan and Accessory Warehouse, LLC, La Scala has created an endless amount of art created exclusively for custom interiors. Working with licensed Interior Designers from across the country, Damon creates “one of a kind” pieces which cater to and enhance the design concepts of interior spaces. Hundreds of these pieces exist and have become part of the landscape of both commercial and residential spaces.

Each creation is custom from size, to color, to material, to hanging device making it possible to match existing finishes and motifs. Pieces can also be composed on canvas, metal, bamboo, paper collage, plexiglass, and a variety of other materials. Damon also provides a variety of hanging and mounting options from traditional framing, to more contemporary industrial, or stylized methods and hardware.

Damon’s most popular work involves reverse painting on plexiglass. This technique creates a three dimensional effect under a glass-like finish, often mistaken for resin. He explains: “When I paint on plexiglass, it is a reverse painting. The foreground gets painted before the background, which keeps me exploring and creating new perspectives.”

What makes all of his pieces unique is Damon’s process creating organic patterns which can be controlled but not replicated. Damon explains: “My philosophy is letting the art control my mind. Giving my hand the brush and letting my mind create what is to become. A philosophy from the subconscious mind creating a vision that is mesmerizing when you walk into an interior.” This approach allows each piece to be a one of a kind design while allowing impressions to be reproduced as a series.

STUDIO LA SCALA FINE ART

Over the last 13 years Denver based artist Damon La Scala has created multiple series of Fine Art oil paintings. Often large in size, his compositions evoke emotional responses to both color and movement and are driven by concepts which are, according to La Scala, “major reflections of my life and the obscure ways we as humans can skew reality”.

As he describes “I feel free while staring at a white canvas. It is the anticipation for the future. The works of Picasso, Duchamp, Dali, Van Gogh, and this list goes on, inspire me. My paintings relate to cubism, expressionism and surrealism while twisting in my own stamp. I want the viewer to see the influence from both the masters and myself. Combining grab bags of ideas is what fuels the evolution of my style.”

Each piece tells an elaborately detailed story which captures intimate moments under the umbrella of a larger concept. “The unknown, dreams, space, time, evolution, these are major concepts that captivate me to create.” Clocks, stairs, arches, windows and doorways, music and movement are all visual themes that are threaded through out La Scala’s work. Each piece reflecting how human experience, ideas, and emotions all play a part in the visual cycle of his compositions.
